Dear Millie,

Thank you for your invaluable advice these past few months as we have built a strong relationship between the NRA and “The Right to Bear Arms.” Your support (both as a leading gun rights advocate and as a powerful female leader) has been inspiring to me!

As has been discussed with you, “The Right to Bear Arms” was more than happy to cover all of the expenses for the successful visit of the NRA leadership to Moscow last December. (We loved hosting your leaders and I’m pretty sure they enjoyed the events that we arranged!) But in order to overcome the small difficulty that emerged from the addition of two additional individuals at the last minute to the trip, I have attached an invoice to cover just those expenses – which I paid personally. I’m sorry to have to ask, but we only budgeted for the original delegation size.

“Bridges, LLC” is the small American consulting company that I established to help with business and cultural relations between Russia and America. Please call or write to me with any questions or suggestions on how to proceed. Thank you!
